

IAN H WATKINS

coming home

After a celebrated career in the performing arts, Ian H. Watkins returned to his first love of painting, channeling his deep emotional connection to his homeland into a powerful body of visual work.

Through shifting light, layered texture and instinctive mark-making, Ian's paintings capture his love for places remembered as much as observed, and invite us to experience our own sense of homecoming.

Working primarily in acrylic, layered with pastel, charcoal, and touches of gold leaf, Watkins paints with energy and intuition. Often working on location, he gathers sand or soil to mix into his surfaces, creating pieces that are a literal extension of the land itself. The result is a raw, tactile aesthetic that mirrors the rugged beauty of cliffs, coastlines, and valleys, while evoking the atmosphere and emotion of place.
